Grand Ridge Park

A special feature of Grand Ridge are the groves of western red cedar trees and sword ferns in the central part of the ridge. Some of the cedars are over five feet in diameter. The red alder forests and wetlands in the north end of the park act as the headwaters for salmon-bearing Canyon Creek, which flows east to Patterson Creek and the Snoqualmie River, and the North Fork of Issaquah Creek, which flows west into Lake Sammamish. A seven-mile shared-use trail built by Washington Trails Association volunteers traverses the long linear park wandering through a variety of forest settings which provide habitat for bears, cougars, owls and other wildlife. The trail will end at Duthie Hill Park in the north, the site of a mountain bike skills park and trail network.

GRAND RIDGE

Grand Ridge Park is 1,200 acres of pristine forest rising 1,100 feet in elevation above Issaquah and Lake Sammamish. Established to provide natural resource preservation and passive recreation along the edge of urban and rural living, the park is located between Mitchell Hill Forest to the east and the Issaquah Highlands residential development to the west. The steep slope above the North Fork of Issaquah Creek is covered by stands of large second growth Douglas fir trees.
