WHEREAS, King County recognizes the natural environment as the foundation of a healthy society and a strong economy; and

WHEREAS, in its role as a regional government, King County has established the King County-Cities Climate Collaboration to create a specific package of joint commitments to meet targets for reducing greenhouse gas emissions; and

WHEREAS, King County offers numerous volunteer opportunities that residents can participate in, such as the 1 Million Trees campaign to plant a million trees by 2020 to combat climate change and provide myriad additional benefits; and

WHEREAS, King County provides tools and resources to help residents combat climate change through offering energy-conscious choices, promoting the use of renewable energy, making homes energy efficient, and spotlighting alternative sources of fuel and methods of transportation; and

WHEREAS, King County has implemented effective policies on land use, public transportation, environmental management, and economic development to stimulate climate-friendly fuel and technology markets; and

WHEREAS, with care in how we use energy and water, investments in transit and trails, and small changes in our daily habits, we can forge a sustainable future for King County— even as we experience one of the highest growth rates in the nation; and

WHEREAS, the 48th annual Earth Day celebration and King County’s “Easy Being Green” campaign this year showcase how simple, earth-friendly actions can unleash a positive wave of change.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Dow Constantine, Executive of King County, do hereby proclaim April 22, 2018 to be in King County. I encourage all residents to join me in celebrating the earth, as we continue to build a thriving community of residents empowered for environmental protection.

Dow Constantine
King County Executive
