

Learn about King County funding to create parks and open spaces in your community

Conservation Futures tax levy (CFT) grants can help buy open spaces in cities and in rural King County, such as:

- Natural areas
- Urban greenspaces
- Trails
- Farms (urban and rural)
- Forests
- Passive recreation parks
- Community gardens

CFT funding can be awarded to governmental agencies, and eligible nature conservancy or historic preservation nonprofits. Communities can partner on projects with local agencies and eligible nonprofits.

In communities that have historically been underserved with open space investments, CFT funding may be able to pay for 100% of acquisition costs.
